Serving Humanity - Celebrating Solidarity

August 4th, 2016

Dear Lynne,

I'm happy to hear of the accelerating progress of ESF and its work! I am so very sorry that I never got to participate in an Assembly. It was always my plan, because I do so very strongly believe in ESF's mission.

I have attached a poem I have written in honor of the ESF Assembly in Hyderabad. Please have a look at it and, if you think it appropriate, share it with the assembly.

Please give my love to Mary Caroline, Tricia, Megan and Victoria.

I'm with you in spirit and wish you and all the others a transformative, refreshing, inspiring time together.

In gratitude,

John

A Poem for Peacemakers

I.

In the tear-watered soil of this suffering world, quietly grow the roots of peace.

Their tiny tips travel out inch by inch around and even through the rocks, the rubble of war, the boneyards of famine,
the thickest walls of apathy and fear.

They reach out to each other searching patiently, incessantly for the clear stream and its source.

Like a great grove of aspens lifting up silvery leaves, a million tiny prayer flags fluttering in the breeze, what can be seen of peace is beautiful.

When it is swept away by drought or fire or flood, the wise do not despair, but turn again to tend the soil wherein the roots grow deep and deep and strong for the next rebirth.

The whole earth groans and pushes again toward joy.

II.

Every being in this mad time lives with an arrow in its heart, so said Gautama Buddha.
Learn to take the arrow out, he said, then help others do the same. Hate, fear, and anger he said, are like a second arrow beside the first. Take them out!
There is no time to argue the fine points of archery.
Move out into the world as wounded healers.
The world needs this medicine:
the strength of your dream,
your slowness to judge,
your quickness to bless.

III.

When this warring world was full of kings, the longed-for land was called the Kingdom of God, then the Peaceable Kingdom.

In this time of race against race in fragile republics, we look for the Beloved Community.

It is our native land, and memories of its pleasant hills and streams, our young feet in its sun-dappled meadows call us home.

The wise set aside everything to pass again through its gates:
the wound in the chest,
the listening ear,
the bright eyes of a child.
